Fluent JavaScript Callum Rimmer, Lucian Lature

Key Features

- An interactive and accessible writing guide that will help you gain full command over the language
- Write effective, idiomatic code in JavaScript to develop powerful web applications with OOP and functional and reactive programming principles
- Explore the world of front-and back-end architectures and combine them to write Universal JavaScript

Book Description

JavaScript is the most widely used language over the web, but to become truly productive at web development, you need to take advantage of the wealth of JavaScript's features in the right manner.

The book begins by getting you up to speed with using JavaScript and answers some of the small, tactical questions on writing elegant code. Once you're well versed with writing well-structured JavaScript code, we move on to address larger problems in web development by introducing some of the widely used OOP and functional and reactive programming techniques. From there, we'll take a tour of some of the cool, important JavaScript features used to control the DOM and browser rendering to build compelling front-end UIs.

We'll then dive into using React as a front-end architecture and you'll learn to script on the server side and write Isomorphic code. The book ends by exploring some of the widely used testing and deployment techniques that will ensure your code runs perfectly.

By the end of this book, you will know how to write effective and clean code in JavaScript by taking advantage of its best and possibly most neglected features.

What you will learn

- Set up the modern front-end workflow
- Write maintainable code on both the front and back ends
- Improvise development by writing Universal JavaScript
- Modularize your programs for better reusability
- Use the best known design patterns for effective programming
- Draft code functionally and use Reactive programming for highly interactive experiences

About the Author

Callum is a full-stack JS developer, who, for more than 14 years, has been working with blue-chip companies, start-ups, and individuals to create sophisticated web applications. Callum has an honors degree in Physics and cut his web development teeth in a start-up he founded straight from university. He enjoys developing, testing, and deploying JavaScript both on the client and on the server, and all different types of projects. Callum is also a keen runner, a fervent Evertonian, and an avid reader.

Callum believes the future of application development is key-stoned by hybridized JavaScript. JavaScript provides the flexibility to run in any environment, on any device, to do any task and to provide persistence, all with infinite scalability.

Lucian is an experienced front-end developer / architect, and for the past 15 years he has been creating websites and intranet applications.

He specializes in building complex single page web apps in agile environments, web 2.0 applications (e-commerce, multilingual, transactional, API based, architecture/development, and so on), with a deep focus on front-end development and back-end development, responsive web, usability, and client-side / GUI development.

Being passionate about keeping himself on top of new and emerging technologies and their potential application in client engagements, he has an in-depth understanding of the Software Development Life Cycle (SDLC). The best practices of front-end/UX engineering (User Experience), web standards, usability, and product/project management is at the core of everything that he does professionally.
