From Neo-Classical cities and historic towns to the beautiful, untouched countryside and tranquil villages, both Scotland and Wales offer something for everyone. Both lands can easily be added to a trip to England, or enjoyed as a destination in themselves. Most of the 37 daytrips described in this brand-new guide can be taken from the base cities of Edinburgh/Glasgow, Shrewsbury, Aberystwyth, or Cardiff. Apart from the usual cathedrals, museums, castles, and stately homes, there are included such attractions as country walks, literary trails, Roman ruins, craft centres, distilleries, glass factories, walled cities with medieval streets, great seaports, quaint hamlets, railfan trips, wildlife expeditions, copper mines, a strange Italian village, the mecca of golf courses, and even the Hogwarts Express.
