Conflict is inherent in virtually every aspect of human relations, from sport to parliamentary democracy, from fashion in the arts to paradigmatic challenges in the sciences, and from economic activity to intimate relationships. Yet, it can become among the most serious social problems humans face when it loses its constructive features and becomes protracted over time with no obvious means of resolution.

This book addresses the subject of intractable social conflict from a new vantage point. Here, these types of conflict represent self-organizing phenomena, emerging quite naturally from the ongoing dynamics in human interaction at any scale—from the interpersonal to the international. Using the universal language and computational framework of nonlinear dynamical systems theory in combination with recent insights from social psychology, intractable conflict is understood as a system locked in special attractor states that constrain the thoughts and actions of the parties to the conflict. The emergence and maintenance of attractors for conflict can be described by means of formal models that incorporate the results of computer simulations, experiments, field research, and archival analyses. Multi-disciplinary research reflecting these approaches provides encouraging support for the dynamical systems perspective.

Importantly, this text presents new views on conflict resolution. In contrast to traditional approaches that tend to focus on basic, short-lived cause-effect relations, the dynamical perspective emphasizes the temporal patterns and potential for emergence in destructive relations. Attractor deconstruction entails restoring complexity to a conflict scenario by isolating elements or changing the feedback loops among them. The creation of a latent attractor trades on the tendency toward multi-stability in dynamical systems and entails the consolidation of incongruent (positive) elements into a coherent structure. In the bifurcation scenario, factors are identified that can change the number and types of attractors in a conflict scenario. The implementation of these strategies may hold the key to unlocking intractable conflict, creating the potential for constructive social relations.

Douglas Leverette:

That guide can make you to feel relax. That book Attracted to Conflict: Dynamic Foundations of Destructive Social Relations (Peace Psychology Book Series) was colourful and of course has pictures on the website. As we know that book Attracted to Conflict: Dynamic Foundations of Destructive Social Relations (Peace Psychology Book Series) has many kinds or category. Start from kids until young adults. For example Naruto or Private investigator Conan you can read and believe you are the character on there. So , not at all of book are usually make you bored, any it offers up you feel happy, fun and loosen up. Try to choose the best book to suit your needs and try to like reading that.

Jackie Frost:

As a scholar exactly feel bored to help reading. If their teacher asked them to go to the library or make summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just small students that has reading's heart or real their leisure activity. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to right now there but nothing reading really. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring in addition to can't see colorful photographs on there. Yeah, it is being complicated.
